From Sarah Rowland - Speech Pathologist

Emergent communicators talk on their own agenda before they are ready to follow someone else's. Don't expect them to answer questions or talk about your chosen topic. You'll have the biggest impact on their learning if you follow their lead! Don't forget to model language on their AAC while you do!

If you have specific questions, contact Sarah Rowland for support at 242-8220 or sarah.rowland@dmschools.org

Volleyball Outside!

Ruby Van Meter students enjoyed a morning of volleyball when the Dowling Catholic Maroon girls volleyball team stopped by for a few games. The games were played in the circle drive where fans lined the grass and cheered on the Vikings and Maroons. Unified games were played that included Dowling and RVM athletes on both sides of the net. The Dowling athletes then played a game against each other showing off their big hits! Even the staff got involved with a few teacher/associate games. It was an exciting morning, the weather was cool, but the games were hot and our Ruby Van Meter learners had a great time!
